Feel Safe Again, Inc. was officially established September 2003, incorporated in December, and publicly announced January 2004 during a press conference at the Statehouse in Boston. We are a statewide grassroots 501(c)(3) tax-exempt non-profit organization for Victims of Stalking.

Our goal is to provide potentially life-saving information and support group services to victims and survivors of stalking. Our hope is that no other victim has to live their life in fear. We want to help you "Feel Safe Again" by teaching you how to be safe again. Together we CAN make a difference!

Feel Safe Again, Inc., a statewide grassroots non-profit organization for victims of stalking would like to take a moment to personally thank all of its board members, the speakers, clinicians, law enforcement officials, firefighters, advocates, victims, survivors, family and friends who attended our First Annual Stalking Conference and Fourth Annual Benefit Dinner on March 14, 2008, at the Devens Common Center in Devens, Mass.

We successfully accomplished our goal of educating others, creating public awareness and raising additional funds to help victims become survivors. The conference was a very thorough training which included key individuals in the investigation of my sister's murder on January 20, 2000, by a package bomb her stalker hand-delivered to her Everett, Mass. home.

February 19, 2008, Durham, NH - Contrary to stereotype, most Internet sex offenders are not adults who target young children by posing as another youth, luring children to meetings, and then abducting or forcibly raping them, according to a University of New Hampshire study.

Most online sex offenders are young adults who target teens and seduce them into sexual relationships, according to the study, "Online 'Predators' and Their Victims: Myths, Realities and Implications for Prevention." They take time to develop the trust and confidence of victims, so that the youths see these relationships as romances or sexual adventures.

February 25, 2008, Concord, NH - The state's top law enforcement officer is concerned that a recent University of New Hampshire study debunking stereotypes about Internet sex predators could cause parents and their children to drop their guard against online threats.

"I hope that the study does not leave a false sense of security for parents and children about the safety of the Internet," said state Attorney General Kelly Ayotte. "I think that the cases we've seen in our state give us plenty of reasons to be vigilant."

Although this information has been available since January 2007, it is important for each state to consider the facts of this report if they haven't had an opportunity to review it.

Washington, DC - The National Center for Victims of Crime, the nation's leading advocacy group for crime victims, today released a policy report that calls on states to evaluate the adequacy of their stalking laws and provides model legislation designed to increase stalker accountability and victim safety. The release coincided with commemoration of National Stalking Awareness Month in January.

National Crime Victims' Rights Week...April 13-19, 2008

~~~~~

It's that time of year again!!! Please join us in Concord, NH on Tuesday, April 15, 2008, for a press conference at St. Paul's Church at 11:00am, followed by several events throughout the day. We will also be at the Statehouse in Boston, MA on Wednesday, April 30, 2008, from 9:00am-3:00pm. There will be hundreds of organizations coming together to setup displays which include available resources for victims. These are both very powerful and inspirational events...so please consider volunteering your time to help us recognize Victims' Rights Week!

Thank you in advance...to everyone who is willing/able to show their support to victims, and for helping us to offer our resources to other providers.
